Schumer Report: Upstate New York Hospitals Could Lose $700 Million Under New Administration Budget Cuts

Today, U.S. Senator Charles E. Schumer revealed that cuts to Medicare and Medicaid included in the Administration's budget, released on Monday, would cost upstate New York hospitals nearly $700 million over the next five years. The Administration's budget includes cuts that would reduce Medicare payments to hospitals, skilled nursing facilities (SNFs), home health agencies, inpatient rehabilitation facilities (IRFs) and units, and other providers. Today, at a Senate Finance Committee Hearing, Schumer will grill Health and Human Services Secretary Michael Leavitt for pushing such dramatic cuts upon struggling hospitals in New York and across the country.

Schumer used data compiled by the Healthcare Association of New York State.
